

The test is sharp once the axis is measured well (current data favour the systematic; future data decides)

How well must we measure the axis?
closer poles demand sharper data

